Review of Historical Studies (RHS), a peer-reviewed journal of social science, launched by the Department of History, Bankura University, is committed to explore social, political, economic and cultural history of India including the gender history in wider perspective. Our purpose is to accommodate a variety of subjects to present before our readers a panoptic understanding of the changing trends in historical writing. RHS also features research on the intense changes in the domain of politics, cultures and history of South Asia and beyond. This changing pattern has not only reshaped the history, but also encouraged scholars all around to discuss or interpret it in terms of divergent or convergent perspectives in a common platform.
